Ex-teacher faces 56 counts in sex assault, peeping case

http://www.news-record.com/news/article_cfca99ca-c5b0-11e3-81c4-0017a43b2370.html

MEBANE — A former Randolph County Schools teacher who faces 56 charges in connection with sexual contact with or illegal photography of students turned himself in to deputies today, according to a news release.

In December, deputies charged Hazem Moustafa Eldara, 54, of 350 Stowe Ave., in Asheboro, with taking indecent liberties with a student. Eldara posted bail and was released.

Further investigation led to authorities on Feb. 3 to charge Eldara with 19 more counts of taking indecent liberties with a student, 18 counts of using a photographic imaging device to view others and 18 charges of possession of a photographic image obtained in violation of secret peeping statute, according to a news release. The continuing investigation led deputies to seize several digital media devices, according to the news release.

Searches of the devices helped deputies identify seven more victims, according to the sheriff's office. All but one are current or former students of Eldara, who taught math to students in the ninth through 12th grades. The eighth victim is an adult who worked at Randleman High School with Eldara, deputies said.

Deputies did not arrest Eldara earlier because they thought he had left the country, according to the release. Eldara is being held on $2.75 million bail at the Randolph County jail.

40 arrested; 25 brothels in N.C. found following 5-year investigation http://www.news-record.com/news/article_777bf422-c659-11e3-ae09-001a4bcf6878.html

A tip nearly five years ago led to the arrests of 40 people, including 30 in Winston-Salem, over the past few years on state and federal charges of human trafficking, prostitution and kidnapping, authorities said Thursday.

In August 2009, a Winston-Salem resident gave investigators a tip about a brothel, said Lt. David Lamb of the Winston-Salem Police Department.

Investigators eventually learned that the brothel was part of an organized prostitution ring that moved women and girls in and out of the state, Lamb said.

An undercover police detective who worked on the case said that the victims paid to be smuggled into the U.S. and were told that they would get legitimate jobs here. When they arrived, though, they were forced into prostitution, the detective said.

The victims came from Central America, including such countries as Honduras and Guatemala, the detective said. A minor was among the victims.

Investigators identified 25 brothels in North Carolina, nine of which were in Winston-Salem. The brothels were scattered around the city, including in the Robinhood Road area, the Thomasville Road area, the Easton neighborhood and off University Parkway and Shattalon Drive, police said.

The suspects face a total of 76 charges at both the state and federal levels. Several law enforcement agencies contributed to the investigation, including police in Asheboro, Durham, Greensboro, Raleigh and Kernersville.

Vincent Picard, a spokesman for U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement, said his agency focuses on stopping human exploitation, including sex trafficking and prostitution.

“We are concerned about women being in trafficking against their will,” Picard said. “No one agency can address a problem like this by itself.”

City police identified one Greensboro resident and six Winston-Salem residents who had key roles in the prostitution ring.

These defendants have been through the court process:

- Carmina Canton, 55, of 1825 Boulevard St., Greensboro, was charged last January with soliciting prostitution and maintaining a dwelling for prostitution in March 2012.

Canton was convicted of the charges last month in Forsyth District Court. A judge gave Canton a suspended 45-day jail sentence and put her on probation for 18 months, a court record shows. She was ordered to pay $530 in fines and court costs and spend two days in the Forsyth County Jail.

- Deysi Suyapa Rodriguez, 39, was charged in January 2011 with felony sexual servitude and promoting prostitution of a minor, an arrest warrant says.

Rodriguez served 20 months in prison after she pleaded guilty to promoting the prostitution of a minor in August 2011 in Forsyth Superior Court, according to court and state correction records.

- Fredi Menendes Garcia, 43, was charged in June 2011 with promoting prostitution of a minor and maintaining a dwelling for prostitution, an arrest warrant says.

Garcia served 14 months in prison after he pleaded guilty to both charges in March 2012, according to court and state correction records.

- Mauro Aparicio Hernandez, 51, and Augusto Justino Valverde-Morales, 52, each were charged in December 2010 with felony human trafficking and kidnapping, both state offenses, and importation of an alien for an immoral purpose, a federal offense, police said.

- Augusto Justino Valverde-Morales, 51, of 1438 N Cherry St., Winston-Salem — importation of alien for immoral purpose, human trafficking and kidnapping.

Hernandez and Valverde-Morales were accused of holding a woman in involuntary servitude or sexual servitude and moving that woman from place to place without her consent, arrest warrants say. The woman was sexually assaulted, according to the warrants.

Assistant District Attorney Lizmar Bosques dismissed the charges against Hernandez and Valverde-Morales in May 2011 because the federal government planned to prosecute the men. The status of their federal cases was unavailable Thursday.

- Lorenzo Espinal Almonte, 34, was charged with interstate commerce to facilitate prostitution, a federal offense, police said. A U.S. attorney dismissed the charge, Picard said.

- Ondina Lizeht Alonso Hernandez, 32, of Southwin Drive was charged with human trafficking, a federal offense, Picard said. The status of her case was unavailable Thursday. The following law Enforcement Agencies contributed to the investigation:

According to North Carolina law, Herrera's felony charges could bring between 10 and 49 months of prison per charge if he is convicted. Raleigh police did not document any prior criminal activity by Herrera in their arrest warrant.

In addition to a $500,000 bond, the Wake County magistrate's office issued a special order for Herrera to stay away from the victim's home, school and place of employment. He is not to have any communication with her.
